I do not know – Ted had mentioned that he would only attend for a bit, but we'd be left in good hands with the rest of the product leadership team.

Agree we should think through what we'd want to present, lets talk about it in our meeting and I can work getting them together.

I think a post-lunch split up makes sense so we can get traction on a SMAPI integration. I will suggest that to the Google team.

Do you know how long Hugo will be able to attend? I've heard he will have to leave early.

I was thinking we might present a brief company strategy overview (Tom on SiS, PA, CYW, MAP) followed by a presentation on P2S (perhaps the one we gave to partners in April), not as a specific proposal, but as an indication of what we're thinking and the range of things we could work with them on. And of course we'd like their thoughts on what they want to achieve. Then it would be good to identify the most important issues on each side: technical, business, or otherwise (do they have any preconceptions on design, which features are priority for them, goal of a solution that works for more than just Sonos, OS-level v. app-level solutions, etc.)

I'm pretty sure this won't be enough time if we get any traction on Fling, so would suggest up front that we may want to split up after lunch.

OS level integration of audio playback
Room management: Grouping, volume, etc
Audio url passing through the cloud

Shared queue support

Other:
